Storing Bag in Box Beer

Follow these steps to ensure your bag in box beer remains in its optimum condition:

- Bag in box beer needs to be stored below 12 degrees Celsius, (normal cellar temperature).
 - Store in a dry area or on a shelf to prevent moisture damaging the box.
- Only bring tap out of perforated tap hole when ready to use.
- Be very careful when pulling tap out through perforated hole. Do not pull by the black tap, pull with the white collar surrounding it to ensure the tap doesn't come out of its aperture. This would allow air and possible contaminants into the protective bag.
- If your bag in box has started to inflate, (outer layers of bag filling with CO₂), simply sit box onto short end away from tap, remove the perforated tab from tap and press button down to release the gas.
- Do ensure you release the gas if it is inflating as if left it can cause bag and box to burst.
 - Keep cool to prevent bag inflating.
